PAID NO HEED TO SUGGESTION

McChord Condemns New Haven
Food For Negelect

THE DISASTER AT WESTPORT

Might Have Been Averted If Recommendations Made After Bridgeport Wreck Had Been Followed—Time to "Quit Thinking and Talking and Do Something," Says Commissioner

New York, Oct. 10.—Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord, continuing his investigation of the wreck at Westport, Conn., on Oct. 3, which cost eight lives, found that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad had failed to comply with a recommendation made by the commission after investigating the cross-over wreck at Bridgeport a year ago.

This recommendation was that when a shorter cross-over than one with eighteen or twenty foot frogs is used, all stop signals should be set against the on-coming train and that the train should come to a standstill before the interlocking switch should be opened.

"Why haven't you complied with this suggestion?" McChord asked Henry Horn, vice president of the New Haven road.

"We discussed it," Horn replied, "but decided that we would merely be substituting one kind of accident for another. It seems to us it is better to put all dependence on signals."

"When are you going to quit thinking and talking and do something?" McChord asked. "Your road has killed twenty or twenty-five people and injured a hundred in cross-over accidents almost identical. When are you going to do something except confer?"

"Our best thought is being given the subject," Horn replied. "I do not know which method is best."

"If you had followed our suggestion of a year ago this wreck would not have occurred, would it?" McChord asked.

"No, but another accident might have happened," Horn replied. "We might have struck the work train on the straight track."

"But if the engineer had gone down a straight track he would have met a flagman and torpedoed, would he not?"

"If he ran past one signal he would have run past another."

Charles H. Morrison, signal engineer, also admitted that the recent wreck would have been averted had the road adopted the suggestion made by the commission after the Bridgeport wreck.

"I believe that some day we must have automatic stops," said Morrison, "but there are no efficient ones to be had today. Besides, no automatic stop would have prevented the Westport wreck."

Horn was recalled briefly and the hearing was adjourned. The commission will continue its investigation but no more testimony will be taken.

Boston Man Gets Sentence of Three Years For Killing Wife

Boston, Oct. 10.—Upon his plea of guilty to a charge of manslaughter, William Drislane, 30, was sentenced to serve a term of three years in the house of correction.

She went to the side of the couch and tried to arouse her husband. He kicked at her, the lamp was upset, her clothing became ignited and she and the child were so badly burned that they died of their injuries. Drislane did all he could to extinguish the fire, and it was evident there was no malice on his part.

SOCCER

Andover and Methuen were opponents in a league game on the latter's grounds last Saturday afternoon, and Andover, because of injuries to its players, was compelled to again make changes in the lineup. The halfback and front line was changed, Glass taking the place of Rennie and E. Anderson playing for W. Gordon. As usual Methuen put up a stiff fight and forced Andover to share the points, each side scoring a goal. It was the first point Methuen has gained in the league competition.

The lineup:

The Andover Thistles played the Olympic Juniors last Saturday at Burnham park. The Thistles won the toss and they started to press right away, but were driven back. The game was very fast, both teams doing a lot of work and playing good football. At half time neither side had scored. The second half opened with the Olympics pressing. After twenty minutes' play the Olympics scored the first goal with a fine shot. About five minutes after they added another, Gilmartin put in a shot from centre field. The Thistles scored twice and the Olympics scored their third, winning by 3 goals to 2.

Saturday's Games

Andover will play Manchester United tomorrow afternoon on the local grounds and will put the following team on the field: Goal, McArdle; backs, Ross and Downs; halfbacks, Rennie, Rae, Stirling; forwards, Glass, Deyermund, Page, Doig, Doherty.

South Lawrence vs. Clans, at Riding Park.

Bunting vs. Lawrence Olympics, at Lowell.

The Thistles will go to Beverly Saturday to play the U. S. M. Co. team of that place and will take along the following team: Goal, Craik; backs, Anderson, Addley; halfbacks, Low, Lynch, Nicoll; forwards, Ness, Caldwell, Carnathan, McShane, Page.

Business Confidence.

In his speech of acceptance Woodrow Wilson asserted that the tariff has made the business men of the country "timid, fretful, full of alarms; has robbed them of self confidence and manly force until they have cried out that they could do nothing without the assistance of the government at Washington."

Present day conditions challenge the accuracy of this statement. The excellent doctor would do well to point out some of the "timid, fretful" business men who are now "full of alarms" and who are lacking in "self confidence and manly force." Where can he find them?

The country is at the high tide of prosperity. Business confidence is in evidence everywhere. The course of the Republican administration is directly responsible for this condition. Danger lies only in a change of administration, with the consequent change of policy that is promised. Then, truly, the business men of the country would be "full of alarms," and they would have justification.

A Babylonian Ruse.

Recent research has demonstrated that 4,000 years ago folks were complaining of the high cost of living in Babylon. And doubtless some Babylonian politician was trying to demonstrate that the way to reduce the cost was to elect him to office.

MONTENEGRO STARTS BATTLE

Bulgarian Troops Also Reported to Have Crossed Frontier—Single Line by Which Turkey Feeds Macedonian Troops May Be Cut—Diplomats Probably Too Late to Secure Peace

London, Oct. 10.—Bulgaria and Servia, according to report, have followed the example of Montenegro and broken off diplomatic relations with Turkey. If this be true Greece is likely soon to do the same thing, and the tinderbox of Europe will be aflame, with a million armed men to add fuel to the fire.

Already it is officially admitted that Montenegrin troops are across the frontier fighting with the Turkish army, and the despatches say that the Bulgarians also are over the border, moving south.

If Bulgaria does the obvious, Adrianople, thirty miles from her frontier, will be her first objective in an effort to cut it off from Salonica. It is a strong position, however, and will be difficult to take.

After Adrianople the main defense of the Turks is the famous lines of Chatalja, about twenty-five miles west of Constantinople, which extend from the sea of Marmora to the Black sea and cannot be turned, or it may be that part of the Bulgarian army will mask Adrianople, refusing battle until compelled, while the larger part will strike from Philippopolis toward Djuna and Seres.

A part of the Greek army may concentrate in Thessaly and simultaneously make for Ellassona, the headquarters of Turkish troops in Turkish Thessaly, while the Greek fleet bombards Salonica, and the single line of railway by which Turkey feeds her Macedonian troops is cut.

The Macedonian army will then be left to its own resources in an unfriendly country. The Turkish troops at Salonica and Ellassona would then have to fight the Greeks on the west and south and the Bulgarians on the north and east. No re-enforcements can reach them if the preliminary move of cutting the railway is accomplished, till the Adrianople army corps, which alone can be re-enforced from Constantinople and Asia Minor, has decisively defeated the main Bulgarian army.

Everything turns upon this, and probably the only great pitched battle of the war will be fought somewhere to the north or northwest of Adrianople. Turkey's utter inability to defend Epirus against Greece in 1897 was the principal weakness of Turkey's position at that time as it is now.

The whole population from the Gulf of Arta up to Janina is pro-Greek, and with Greek gunboats keeping the Turkish fortress of Preveza busy, it should not need a very large army, according to the experts, to occupy Turkish Epirus, or at least up to Janina.

Europe was prepared for an appeal to arms by Servia and Bulgaria by the replies of their governments that the reforms promised by the powers in Macedonia were vague and that no guarantee was given that they would be carried out. It is generally recognized that the intervention of the European ambassadors at the porte cannot now have any effect.

POWER HOUSE EXPLOSION

One Man Killed, Two Injured, and Traffic Tied Up

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 10.—A boiler explosion in the Fremont street power house of the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway company last evening caused the death of one man and serious burns to two others, and tied up electric rail traffic in the city and county for more than an hour and a half.

Great jets of hot steam and boiling water were unloosed by the blowing out of a tube and cap in one of the sixteen boilers in the power house, scalding Mohammed Hassan and Joseph Dekoski, two stokers who were working at the firebox.

Arnold S. Allen, chief engineer of the plant, was found lying dead just outside the engine room. According to the report of the medical examiner he died from heart disease, induced by fright.

DYNAMITE CASE DEFENSE

What Counsel For Accused Men Will Attempt to Prove

Indianapolis, Oct. 10.—Lines of defense in the dynamite conspiracy trial was reached when Attorney Harding finished his opening statement before the jury in the federal court. The defense will be that the forty-five defendants did not refer to dynamites when they referred in their correspondence to "jobs."

The defense further will attempt to show that President Ryan and other defendant officers of the Ironworkers' International union had no knowledge that any of their members were dynamiting non-union work.

GENERALS TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY

More Americans Killed in Fight With Nicaraguans

San Juan del Sur, Nic., Oct. 9.—The American forces lost four marines and three bluejackets killed in the attack on Leon and Chinandaga, which were occupied by the rebels. Fifty of the rebels were killed and many wounded. The others have been disarmed.

The American force now in the vicinity of Leon and Chinandaga now numbers 1200 and has the situation under control.

Evidently influenced by the capture of Masaya, the leaders of the Liberals at Leon asked for safe conduct to leave the country, agreeing to surrender to the city.

This was satisfactory to President Diaz and Admiral Southerland and permission to leave, with the proviso that they should not return, was granted General Irias and a dozen other generals who have been making Leon their headquarters.

CANNOT HAVE EDDY GIFT

Bequest of $2,000,000 to "Mother Church" Exceeds Law's Limitation

Boston, Oct. 10.—The Massachusetts supreme court decided that the Christian Science church could not take the gift of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy from her estate, which was made under her will, because it came within the state statute prohibiting a gift to a church which yields an income in excess of $2000 a year.

The court says, however, that the gift is not void, as it constitutes a public charitable trust, having been made to promote the religion taught by Mrs. Eddy, and that it can be administered by trustees, to be appointed by the court.

The property willed to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, the "Mother church," by Mrs. Eddy, its founder, was estimated at about $2,000,000.

ON EVE OF THE BECKER TRIAL

"Big Jack" Zeig Killed With Policeman's Gun

SLAYER IS QUICKLY CAUGHT

District Attorney Worried at Silencing of Gunman Who Was to Be Chief Witness Against Becker, Charged With the Murder of Rosenthal—Graft Case Against Police Killed

New York, Oct. 7.—Baffled so far in their efforts to connect Philip Davidson, the slayer, and the events surrounding the murder by him of "Big Jack" Zeig as the latter sat complacently smoking a cigarette on the end of an open northbound Second Avenue street car, with the killing of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who met death in somewhat similar circumstances, the police are bringing every influence at their command to bear on Davidson to induce him to give a complete and detailed account of the events which led to the murder of the leader of the east side gunman Saturday night.

The first and most important circumstances being investigated is the revolver which was taken from Davidson less than a minute after he sprang onto the running board of the street car and, placing the muzzle of the weapon close behind the gunman's ear, pulled the trigger and sent a bullet crashing through his brain.

Leaping from the car the murderer was escaping across Fourteenth street toward First Avenue, when Policeman Schmidt, in citizen's clothes, seized him, threw him to the ground and took the still smoking gun from his hand.

An examination of it disclosed that it was the pattern carried by policemen. Further sifting developed that it had been the property of a policeman who travels out of the Fifth Avenue station, Brooklyn. While the name of the policeman who once owned the revolver has been kept secret, it is known that his number is 4812.

District Attorney Whitman took part in an eight hour grilling of Davidson, which, to a large extent, only brought about confirmation from him of his original story, to the effect that he shot Zeig because the latter had backed him into a doorway, beaten him up and robbed him of his savings. That the district attorney is worried over the killing of Zeig cannot be denied. He, it is said, had just about convinced Zeig that the best thing he could do would be to go to the witness stand in the trial of Lieutenant Charles Becker, which begins today, and tell all he knows about the arrangements which were made between him and "Bridge" Webber and "Jack" Rose, by the terms of which he supplied for them the quartet of gunmen who killed Herman Rosenthal in front of the Metropole cafe.

Incidentally, perjury charges which it was thought by the district attorney would be easy to prove against Steinert and White, two of Becker's "strong arm squad," are now certain to fall for lack of evidence.

Zeig charged that the two men "framed up" on him by placing a revolver in his pocket after arresting him in the very cafe from which he started to his death. He was charged, after the alleged "frame up," with carrying concealed weapons. It was on this accusation that the police expected to send him to Sing Sing for a long term.

TWELFTH CHAIR VACANT

Talesmen in Becker Case Say They Have Already Formed Opinions

New York, Oct. 10.—It was impossible yesterday to find the twelfth juror for the trial of Lieutenant Becker. It seemed to Justice Goff that talesmen were deliberately disqualifying themselves.

Man after man, doggedly or glibly, insisted that he had such set convictions that he did not believe he could give Becker a fair trial.

There was no ring of sincerity to the justice's ear in this monotony of voluntary disqualification. The very tones of the unwilling talesmen were dull and flat.

New York, Oct. 9.—Eleven jurymen had been secured for the trial of Lieutenant Becker when Justice Goff at 10:30 last night was moved by the pleas of exhausted lawyers to order a recess until 11 o'clock today.

New York, Oct. 7.—The net result of the first day of the trial of Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal was the selection of one juror.

SECOND GAME A TIE

Battle Royal For Baseball Championship of the World

Boston, Oct. 10.—The second game for the world's premier baseball honors was called at the end of the eleventh inning, when darkness intervened and brought to a close one of the most thrilling contests ever staged in this city. The score was 6 to 6. Tuesday's pitchers' battle paled in comparison to the slugger match of yesterday, and not a single fan left the grounds without a ticklish feeling in his throat.

Christy Mathewson went the entire distance for the McGraw clan, while Jake Stahl used a trio of twirlers. Matty ran into a cyclone in the first round when the Sox slipped three runs across the platter. Ray Collins waded along until the eighth inning, when he met a rally of the New York contingent, similar to that of the Sox in the first round. Charley Hall was placed in the box at that juncture.

New York, Oct. 9.—"Smoky" Joe Wood again has joined the list of Giant killers, and once more the Red Sox, heroes of their own league, winners of scores of strenuous up-hill battles, have proved their worth as gamblers and their ability to come from behind in a pinch.

On the historic Polo grounds the American league champions struck a telling blow to the hopes of McGraw and the National league contingent when they fell upon Jeff Torreau, drove him from the rubber and turned the tide that had appeared to be setting in against them. The score was 4 to 3.

ANARCHIST DOOMED TO A LIVING DEATH

Thirty Years' Solitary Confinement For King's Assailant

Rome, Oct. 10.—Antonio D'Alba was sentenced to thirty years, military confinement for attempting to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel on March 14 last.

D'Alba is a laborer and can neither write nor read. He told the court his anarchistic comrades chose him to attempt the king's life, and would have killed him had he refused.

The condemned man will spend the next thirty years, if he lives, in a rounded cell, that there may not be even a corner to break the monotony, lighted from the top, without ever seeing a human face, and absolutely without occupation. Even his food will be passed him through a compartment designed to prevent him from seeing his jailer. Prisoners so confined almost invariably soon go insane.

The Neglected Asset

Among the many topics discussed at the Fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, the average man has been most interested in the effort to remedy the costs of living. The discussion on that subject only showed the problem to be world-wide, and perhaps gave strength to the argument of some that the great increase in gold has reduced the purchasing power of the dollar.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, advanced a proposition that is meeting with general approval. The miner brings to the mint 25.8 grains of gold bullion and receives in exchange a 25.8 grain gold dollar. He pays nothing towards the expenses of the mint nor of the government that established and guards it, while all the rest of us pay on our products once or more for the mint and other government establishments. Prof. Fisher urges that the miner be required to pay to the mint 26 or 27 or even 28 grains of gold in exchange for his 25.8 grain gold dollar. This would not only make him share more justly in our taxes, but it would keep the purchasing power of the dollar more even and be the remedy for rising prices.

Many regard the increased production of gold as the cause of rising prices; many others as honestly believe that the great increase in automobiles is the chief reason for present difficulties, and probably others reasons, equally plausible, are offered by other students. Nearly all of these explanations emphasize the fact that the last great increase of gold production, or of automobile making, began about 1896, and that shortly after that date prices began rising and have risen ever since.

The dates are correct, but the explanations do not explain. Peace has been one of the chief factors in the old-time "cheap" living. From 1830 to almost 1860 was a period of low prices, and it was a period of world-wide peace practically. From 1860 to 1880 was a period of wars, and those who have access to family account books of fifty years ago can show some surprising figures to people who are complaining of present high prices. From 1880 there followed a period of world-wide peace, of remarkable inventions, and of steadily descending prices, with great industrial activity and the first mutterings of syndicalism and of organized unrest.

Then our war with Spain, England's war with the Boers, and Japan's thrashing of Russia, followed along in close order at about the close of the century. Great consumption and great waste in many articles immediately followed, and the destruction of capital in war with the unproductive investment of national wealth in armaments, forced prices up. And the great drains on national resources to provide for all the unproductive forces of men and materials engaged in the destructive business of war, made it impossible to enable the wages of the producers to keep pace with rising expenses.

And this tendency has continued. War-time expenditure has not ceased. The present war cloud over the Balkans has given a new feverish pulse-beat to warlike expectation and warlike preparation. One alarm succeeds another, and we have almost forgotten the security and the blessedness of peace. The iron-clad builder has to be fed and paid, and we in the factory and on the farm must find the means to do it. And so waste and luxury continue in spite of us, and throughout the world manufacturers are not laying in large stocks, but are on a hand-to-mouth basis. How can there be anything else than high prices under such conditions?

The time is coming when thoughtful minds will perceive the nobility of that man in Washington who has tried so eagerly to restore international good will and thus to cool the fever and soothe the stress of our times. And those who now blame him will, later, be grateful for the dignity and patience with which he has handled the sensitive question of Mexico's carelessness or insolence. "Peace hath her victories." And good will among nations and among men not only makes business good but makes life easier for the toiler.

A Word of Credit

Some of the most effective work in the Republican campaign is being done by Hon. John Hays Hammond of Gloucester. A lot of people have always attributed Mr. Hammond's activity to a desire for personal advantage, but those who have followed very closely for the last ten years that gentleman's attitude toward public questions are beginning to realize that there is a big bulk of public spirit back of his entrance into the political affairs of the nation. He has borne without cause, many unfair insinuations and disagreeable comments, but it would seem as if he is well justified in at last resenting some of the impudent assertions made by the Bull Mooseers in their desire to minimize his influence. For some time various men in the Bull Moose party have been charging Mr. Hammond with all sorts of manipulation to increase his business prestige, but the most open attack of this sort has recently come from the Roosevelt candidate for Governor of New Hampshire.

Mr. Hammond's retort deserves the place in the retort press which it is getting, and the Townsman is glad to join with other newspapers in giving publicity to the statement, which ought to set at rest for all time the insinuations of personal advantage to come to Mr. Hammond from his advocacy of Republican principles. Massachusetts and Essex County can well afford to add many such citizens to the active political life of the nation as John Hays Hammond. Mr. Hammond's reply to Mr. Churchill is as follows:

Lookout Hill, Gloucester, Mass.

October 7th, 1912

Winston Churchill, Esq.,
Concord, N. H.

Dear Mr. Churchill:

A dispatch in The New York Sun of October 3d from Lisbon, N. H., contains a statement about me, which, by implication at least, suggests that I am still connected with the Guggenheim Exploration Company.

I cannot believe that you intentionally misstated the facts, which are these: I have not been connected with the Guggenheim Exploration Company since 1907, nor have I had any business relations with the Guggenheims since that time. As a matter of fact, there was a disagreement between us as to the settlement of my claims at the time I left the company. Furthermore, the Guggenheim Exploration Company never had anything to do with the Alaskan coal deposits, nor did I ever recommend to that company, or to the Guggenheims individually, any investment in Alaskan properties.

You may be interested to know also that I was a member of a commission of mining engineers appointed by President Roosevelt to recommend changes in the Federal Mining laws. As far back as 1906 this commission recommended that the coal fields remaining in the possession of the United States Government be withdrawn from entry, and that in future they be leased only under certain conditions.

I wish to acquaint you with these facts because I do not believe that you would descend to the tactics of muckraking politicians by questioning the integrity of men who differ with you on political principles.

Yours truly,

(Signed)

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND

Political Duty

It would be difficult to recall a contest in which the problem of doing the right thing was so hard for most voters as at the present time. Many honest men are torn by all sorts of pulling and hauling in connection with the promulgation of the political beliefs of the different parties. Few of them know which way to turn. Of course, the greater part of these people will flock to one or the other of the parties to whom they have given allegiance for many years. Some of them will blindly vote the Democratic ticket just as they always have, and some of them will vote the Republican ticket just as they always have, and for the same reason that they always have. But there is a great mass who are not fixed in this way with regard to the situation, and who must for the first time this year, settle for themselves on honest convictions what their political duty is.

The period of political speaking is just beginning. Newspapers and periodicals are filled with admonitions from one or the other parties urging support for their different candidates. Every community has its local problems, and Andover is not without its own. We are not at this time going to take up the question of which of the three men who have been chosen to lead the different parties for Representative should be named. Doubtless ninety per cent of the people of Andover know whom the writer would choose, but this isn't going to change one whit his request for those who are undecided, to give careful heed to all of the reasons that may be advanced why one or the other of the different men should be selected to go to the House this year and vote for the different measures that shall come before a legislative body which promises to become very much confused at best.

The same admonition should apply to every one of the problems connected with the coming election. It is going to be a mighty good time in the next few weeks for men to make political speakers prove their statements, and weigh with calm, keen, deliberate judgment all statements made by speakers or by the press. If this is done during the coming three or four weeks, men are going to approach the polls on the fifth of November with a much better defined attitude toward candidates and parties than they have at the present time.

Let the motto then be for the coming few weeks, the old Missouri motto of "Show me," and we have every confidence that if this is followed there will be a good many more votes for the Republican party on the fifth of November than some people expect.

It is evident that Candidate Bird is overdoing it. A pretty fine man, and a man who has said some mighty good things, and standing on a platform which, if it were honest, would mean something, can't afford to lose his head as regularly as Mr. Bird has during the past week. Such a propaganda as he is representing might be pretty effective in arousing public opinion, but such exaggerated statements as he is using to push this propaganda will do nothing but bring the cause into pretty thorough disrepute.

The Barnstormers

The board of directors have arranged the following programme of plays to be given by the active members of the Barnstormers this coming season.

In November, Gringore the Ballad-monger, a play in one act adapted from the French of De Banville by Arthur Shirley, will be given with Mr. Arthur Clark in the leading part.

On the same evening, Mrs. H. Winthrop Peirce and Mr. Frank Hardy will appear in a short modern play, the title to be announced.

Gringore is a romantic play in costume of the same class as The Violin Maker given so successfully last year.

It is now in active rehearsal under the management of Mr. Clark.

The most brilliant example of the old English comedy, The School for Scandal by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, will be given in February.

The management are negotiating for the right to produce The Man on the Box, adapted from the novel of that name by Heron MacGrath.

All seats for the plays of this season will be reserved.

For each performance, members can make a selection of seats and receive numbered tickets on presentation of the receipts for their subscriptions for the current year.

Dates and additional particulars will be given later.

The call for subscriptions by the members of the Barnstormers will soon be issued. Natural History Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Andover Natural History society will be held in the School Committee room at 8 p.m., Tuesday, October 15. Clarence H. Knowlton of the Boston Botanical club, will give a talk on the "Plants of Greater Boston," illustrating his talk by many specimens.

Mr. Knowlton's long association with, and study of his subject, warrants the prediction that the evening will be a most entertaining and instructive one, and it is hoped that the members will make an especial effort to be present.

Miss Goldsmith, who attended the convention of the New England Natural History society at Providence, September 28, as a delegate from this society, will make her report and give her impressions of the gathering.

The Lawrence Parade

The mammoth parade and demonstration in which 40,000 people are expected to participate, will take place tomorrow morning. The parade will start at nine o'clock.

Reduced Rates in Savings Bank Life Insurance

The State Actuary of Savings Bank Life Insurance announces a reduction in the rates of the straight life and 20-payment life policies for $500, to take effect November 1st, 1912.

This reduction was made only after consultation with leading New York actuaries and it was unanimously agreed that the reduction could and should be made.

The new rates for the straight life and 20-payment life policies take effect November 1st, 1912—the beginning of the fiscal year of the Savings Insurance Banks, and the change is to be retroactive. All premiums after November 1st, not only on new policies but also on policies already issued, will be on the basis of the reduced rates.

The amount of the reduction varies at different ages, but on a straight life policy for $500 at age fifty the reduction amounts to $1.88; on the 20-payment life policy for $500 at the same age the reduction amounts to $1.96.

The premiums on the 20-year endowment policies issued by the Savings Banks are already much lower than those of other companies and this reduction on the straight life and 20-payment life policies also makes these policies considerably lower.

Tendered Two Showers

Miss Amy Stork of Main street, whose marriage to John Kydd of Providence, R. I., will take place on October 19, was tendered two showers this week by her friends.

The first was a household shower given by Mrs. E. Y. Hincks, last Saturday afternoon. The affair took place on the lawn back of the Archaeology Building, and about thirty guests were present. After Miss Stork had received her numerous gifts, tea was served.

On Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. John C. Angus, Miss Stork was tendered a tin shower. During the afternoon bridge was enjoyed and refreshments served.

The Grange "Dutch" Supper

The Woman's club of Andover Grange is coming to town.

In the past when the Grange has thrown open its doors in West Parish, either for a fair or dramatic entertainment, the public have always responded with a most liberal patronage, and we know of no better way to show our appreciation than in our next coming event to meet you all in "the square."

The Woman's club will hold forth at A. O. U. W. hall, Barnard's block, on Friday, November 1, with the following program:

Sale of fancywork, aprons, candy, etc., from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Supper will be served, Dutch style, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Purchase your market basket at the door for five cents and at the different booths you will find on sale salads, sandwiches, doughnuts, cake, pies, fruit, ice cream, coffee, in fact everything which goes to make up a first class "Grange supper."

Dancing will follow from 9 p.m. to 12 p.m., for which the small fee of twenty-five cents will be charged. No admission to the hall will be charged, but we do expect you to find all the tables, booths, etc., arranged in so tasty a manner that you cannot help but spend your money freely when once inside.

Come and have a good time.

OUR pictures of children are more than photographs. They are studies of child life that will interest you and your friends, and the children—grown up—will also appreciate them.

From an Old Andover Diary

The diary, temporarily in my possession, contains very brief notes made by a young person in Andover, 1857-61. The entries mostly relate to Sabbath preachers and texts, and to the exhibitions and commencement exercises which in the old time attracted large audiences from all the countryside. I think a few of these references to local names and events of the long ago will be of interest to those whose memories cover that period.

"July 9, 1857. Heard the sad news that Prof. Stowe's oldest son Henry was drowned at Hanover, where he was at college. July 11. This morning attended the funeral of Henry. Henry Ward officiated, giving a brief sketch of his life. Aug. 5. Meeting of the Alumni. Sermon by Dr. Cheever of New York. In the afternoon address before the Porter Rhet. by Henry Ward Beecher, said to be intensely interesting. In the evening, address before the Society of Inquiry by Dr. Stearns. (Doubtless President Stearns of Amherst College.) August 6. Anniversary exercises (of Seminary) in the Old South Church. Eighty singers from No. Reading who took dinner at the Academy. In the evening they serenaded some of the people."

"Eighty singers" from a small town like North Reading seemed very strange. Following a hint given in passing through Reading, I looked up in Boston the account of the anniversary given in the next Congregationalist, written by "H. J.", evidently Horace James, afterward the well-known army chaplain. The singers were said to be from a "Normal Musical Institute at North Reading where Professors Root, Webb and Mason are training for a period of 12 weeks a class of 90 persons. They gave choruses of Handel's Messiah, without exception the best to which we ever listened, particularly the Hallelujah Chorus at the close, the effect of which cannot be described—it was like the choir of the New Jerusalem." George F. Root, afterwards so famous as a musical composer and teacher, lived as a boy and young man in North Reading, and there started the musical institutes which flourished in that period. I remember a letter a few years ago from Fanny Crosby, the "sweet singer," now aged and blind, saying that she wrote a certain hymn in 1855 while living at Mr. Root's in North Reading.

"Sept. 2. School commenced, (Punchard) under charge of Mr. Seymour as principal, and Miss Bailey as assistant. Oct. 9. Levee at Mrs. Stowe's, the first since her return from Europe. Nov. 5. Dr. Schaeffer, missionary from Constantinople, preached today."

Dr. William G. Schaeffer was one of the most famous men ever educated in Andover, famous then for his sweet playing on his wonderful flute. I wonder if the Phillips students who occupy his room in Bartlett Hall, "fourth story, north corner, back," know what a great man was their predecessor eighty-two years ago! Dr. William G. Schaeffer, his grandson, now an eminent physician at Lakewood, N. J., was a leading student in P. A. class of 1882, but he roomed at Principal Bangs's."

"Aug. 5, 1858. Meeting of the Alumni. (Semi-centennial of the Seminary). The people had dinner in the tent put up for that purpose. We could hear the shoutings of people, having heard of the success of the Atlantic Cable. Dec. 17. Attend Temperance Society at Henry Foster's. Dec. 30. Our new Town Hall dedicated."

"Feb. 11, 1859. Mr. William Hammond's house burned down today. Mch. 11. Attended lecture at the town hall by Mr. Buckminster on Agriculture. Mch. 12. Moses Abbott, the oldest man in the town and county, was buried today. Apl. 8. Teachers Institute assembled at the Punchard Hall. Apl. 9. Heard Mr. Oliver of Lawrence—a witty piece. There is no doubt who that was! General Henry K. Oliver was a P. A. boy one hundred years ago, 1812, and afterwards a famous teacher in Salem, superintendent of schools in Lawrence, and in 1859 mayor of that city. His speeches were indeed witty. At one time in the "Know Nothing" riots of that time he commanded a company of special police in Lawrence, and the stout hickory club he carried is still preserved in Salem. He was a remarkable man in many different ways—the State treasurer of Massachusetts during all the time of the civil war, and the author of the familiar tune, "Federal Street!" A few other items are reserved for a later issue. C. C. C."

Natural History Society Outing

Saturday, October 5, was an ideal day for the outing of the Natural History society to Blue Hill Observatory in the town of Milton.

Leaving Andover on the 9.38 train for Boston, thence by elevated and surface cars via Dudley street, Matapan and Blue Hill avenue, the party reached the reservation about 11.30. A half hour's walk up the winding, rocky road brought them to the top of the hill where stands the Rotch observatory, founded for the study of meteorological conditions and now controlled by Harvard university. The bare, ledgy top of the hill commands a fine view of the surrounding country, so that on clear days Boston harbor and Bunker Hill monument may be seen in the distance. Owing to its elevation and prominence, Blue Hill was the scene of many "beacon" fires in Revolutionary times.

After partaking of a basket lunch and exploring the top of the hill, the party returned to the pavilion at the entrance, where, after a short rest, they boarded the cars for the homeward trip.

CIVIC LEAGUE MEETS

Annual Fall Gathering Held in Baptist Church. Selectman Eames and Judge Bell the Speakers

The Andover Civic League held its annual October meeting in the Baptist church on Sunday evening, with Judge C. U. Bell and Representative Harry M. Eames as speakers. The topic for the evening was announced as "The Problem of Local Law Enforcement," but the addresses made were noticeably lacking in any mention, except in general terms, of local law or local enforcement.

Dr. Palmer, president of the league, explained the purposes of the organization and then introduced Judge Bell. Out of his long experience with law and courts of law in all their phases, Judge Bell gave several reasons why there are so few convictions of crime or misdemeanor in comparison with the large number of transgressions of the law.

Formerly one of the greatest hindrances to the working out of justice was the lack of public prosecutors. Private citizens hesitated for various reasons to sustain their claims in court and thus aid in securing convictions. Now conditions are changed in a measure, and redress is obtainable through the various district attorneys. Their activity is necessarily limited, however, by the fact that it is physically impossible to attend to all cases coming under their jurisdiction, and many of the minor cases are thus allowed to drop.

Another factor in the impeding of the machinery of the law is the right of appeal, when improperly used. A man is found guilty in a lower court; he appeals to the Superior court. There weightier matters are occupying the attention of the court; the case which has been appealed seems trivial in comparison, and is often permitted to drop out of sight.

The lack of courage shown by many men in standing by the representatives of the law and aiding them in every way possible, both by moral and material support, is another serious drawback. Men are afraid of making enemies, or of injuring their business if they come out openly and attack any vice or misdemeanor.

In spite of these hindrances, however, Judge Bell stated that the law, the court and court officials restrain crime to a large degree, their silent influence having marked power. In the same way the character of the citizens of the community has its influence.

It is necessary, therefore, in order to obtain the best results, that each citizen help to make the general character of the community as high as possible, and that the officials be permitted to feel that they have the support of the community behind them.

Mr. Eames then presented his views as chairman of the Board of Selectmen. He said that the problem of local law enforcement was becoming more and more difficult yearly, owing to the constantly shifting population, and the incoming of people, some of whom have one idea of law, some another, and some none at all. He spoke of the Lawrence agitation and difficulties of the past months, and also of the departure from the quiet and rest of the old New England Sunday, which is becoming more and more marked.

He also mentioned the ease with which people can criticize the action of officials and query why this was done or why that was not done, and said that it is a different matter to face the problem oneself and try to find a solution. One of the chief needs of all officials is to feel assured that they have the interest and help of the community. They would appreciate suggestions and be glad to consult with townspeople on any question of common interest.

Spoke at D. R. Meeting

The first regular meeting of the season of the State Society Daughters of the Revolution was held at Hotel Vendome, Boston, Saturday, October fifth. Mrs. Abbott, regent of the local chapter, was chairman of the programme committee.

The programme consisted of music and a paper by Mr. Archibald Freeman of Phillips Academy on Samuel Seabury.

Other members of the local chapter were present and assisted in singing.

Crazed Man Comes to Andover

Duncan McNair, a resident of Methuen, suddenly went insane on Tuesday of this week, and, coming to Andover, was taken into custody by the police, remaining here until Wednesday afternoon, when he was removed to the Danvers Insane Hospital.

Mr. McNair's case is a particularly sad one. About three years ago, being in a bad state mentally, his family thought it would be necessary to commit him to the asylum, but his condition grew better and the action was deferred. He was a skilled machinist and had been employed in the United Shoe Machinery Company's plant at Beverly.

On Saturday of last week, in apparently good health, he started for Beverly to resume his work, and his family supposed he was still there until notified Tuesday of his detention here.

Suddenly becoming insane, he in some way reached Salem and boarded a Lawrence car. The police in the latter city were notified of his condition, and when he left the trolley at Wilson's Corner, the local police were warned to watch for him. He proceeded towards Andover until he was met near the square by James Saunders and George Dunne, who after considerable difficulty succeeded in getting him to the police station. He remained there until his removal to Danvers the next day.

Mr. McNair is about forty-five years of age.

Meet Me in the Reception Parlor of the

The Boston Store of Lawrence

Observed Sixth Birthday

Eva O. Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cross of Bartlett street, observed her sixth birthday last Saturday by entertaining several of her small friends at a delightful birthday party.

The guests assembled about three o'clock and for the first part of the afternoon games were enjoyed on the lawn. The party then repaired to the dining-room which was tastefully decorated in red, and there refreshments were served. The table was very attractively arranged with red favors.

Those present were: Iva Chase, Irene Curtis, Mary Newton, Elizabeth Harrington, Charlotte Jealous, Dorothy Taylor, Muriel Gilbert, Constance Ramsay, Viola Cashman, Martha Buttrick, Ethel Cross; also, Edith Hart, Mary Belisle, Dorothea Hall of Lawrence, and Lillian Andrews of Methuen. Miss Florence Prevost and Miss Lucy Allen were also guests.

Visitation at St. Matthew's Lodge

Right Worshipful District Deputy Arthur D. Marble of Lawrence with his suite made an official visit to St. Matthew's Lodge on Monday evening. There was a large attendance of members and visitors present to witness the work of the third degree on two candidates.

Following the meeting a banquet was served by Caterer T. E. Rhodes in the Workman hall to which over two hundred sat down. An orchestra composed of members of St. Matthew's lodge rendered several lively selections and the entire gathering joined in singing patriotic songs. The singing was led by the Orpheus Quartet of Lawrence which had previously rendered the music at the initiation.

Tablet Dedicated in Salem

About 4000 people gathered in the state armory at Salem last Saturday afternoon to listen to the exercises conducted by the First Regiment Heavy Artillery M. V. M., to commemorate the erection of a tablet in the corridor of the Essex Institute, placed there in honor of the 298 men of the regiment who fell in battle during the Civil War.

Of the Andover company eight men were present as follows: Geo. W. Chandler, Albert Goldsmith and E. Kendall Jenkins of this town; Lewis G. Holt, John B. A. Russell, and John McLaughlin of Lawrence; Wyman D. Hussey of Lowell, and Horace W. Wardwell of Swampscott.

A Rise in Chicken

Quite apart from the consideration of high prices or the high cost of living, there was a sudden and very noticeable increase in the supply of chicken in Frye Village on Monday evening. And hereby hangs the tale.

A Jewish resident of Lawrence was driving home along North Main street about seven o'clock, his rather rickety wagon laden with coops containing a large number of live chickens, and several cases of eggs. As the team was slowly moving along near the Wm. M. Woods estate, a large touring car, also coming from Andover, and in which were two young men likewise residents of Lawrence, struck the chicken conveyance with considerable force.

In an instant the air was full of agitated fowls flying in every direction. The equally agitated Jew, who fortunately escaped all injury with the exception of a slightly bruised arm, spent the next half-hour, assisted by several bystanders, in picking his way over the egg road and searching in the gutters and on and under bushes for his late passengers. Owing to their dislike of proceeding far in the dark, the chickens did not stray far afield, and finally by the use of lanterns they were all located and put back in the coops.

The wagon was badly demolished, but the horse was unharmed. Just how the accident happened no one seems to know. The autoists stated that there was no light on the team and that they failed to see it for that reason.

Andover Given Clear Bill

Selectman Eames, Treasurer G. A. Higgins, and Tax Collector John W. Bell, appeared before the Recess Committee on Investigation of Municipal Finances at the State House on Thursday to represent the town in the investigation of its financial condition. The examination is one to which all cities and towns are being subjected, and as it is a rigid one, it is highly to Andover's credit that she secured a clear bill.

The First Book to Talk

In New street, Horsham, England, says a writer in a recent number of The Strand, there is to be seen the very exceptional and interesting spectacle of a talking book. The bird is the property of two school-children, a little girl and boy, who caught it five years ago, when it was quite a baby, in a local rookery. It is of the gentler sex, and occupies a small pen in a tiny back garden. No attempt has ever been made to teach the rook to talk, and yet she has a vocabulary of close upon one hundred simple words. She is often allowed out in the garden, for, although she can fly swiftly and strongly, she can be trusted not to make her escape. It is said that this is the first instance of a rook developing the power to talk.

Chadwick Club Concerts

There are few music lovers in Andover or Lawrence and vicinity who have not at some time or other enjoyed the fine concerts given each winter under the auspices of the Chadwick club of Lawrence. Splendid talent and large and enthusiastic audiences have marked these musical evenings in the past, and the citizens of Lawrence have had many opportunities to be grateful to the club for evenings of rare pleasure.

The two concerts planned for this season will rank foremost among the finest which have yet been given. For the first one which will take place in December, the exact date to be announced later, the club has secured at great expense the services of the Boston Symphony orchestra; for the second concert, the well-known Longy club.

The bare announcement of the artists who will provide the entertainment at these two concerts is sufficient to interest all music lovers in this vicinity.

Automobile Lights

October 8, 1912.

To the Editor,
Andover Townsman,
Andover, Mass.

Dear Sir:

This letter is written in the hope that you will publish its contents, since it deals with a subject which is of general interest to the public—the automobile. While some injustice may result to the normal automobilist from the misdeeds of the abnormal driver, there is, nevertheless, one particular in which even the normal driver is constantly transgressing. This is in the matter of the illumination of the rear number plate. One who watches passing automobiles at night is struck by the number of machines which possess inadequate rear lights. This may be due either to wilful disregard, mere carelessness, or actual ignorance of the law. The law explicitly states that "number plates shall be kept clean and the numbers legible, and during the period when the vehicle is required to display lights the rear register number shall be illuminated so as to be plainly visible at a distance of 60 feet."

The wisdom and necessity of such a requirement are plain. The automobile traffic at night is enormous, the danger of accident great, and the ease with which an offending driver can escape undetected, unless his number plate is plainly illuminated, obvious, and yet large numbers of automobilists are constantly violating the law for one of the three reasons above stated. We recommend the first class to the tender mercies of the Highway Commission; to the second we suggest an occasional inspection of the rear light, and to the latter a brief perusal of the law requiring effective illumination with results visible at 60 feet.

As the Highway Safety League exists for the purpose of trying to make life on the highway and in the automobile a little safer than it appears to be at present, the League considers itself justified in calling the attention of the public to this important matter of lights, and to the fact that it welcomes the membership and cooperation of all persons interested in its object.

Highway Safety League,
LAWRENCE G. BROOKS,
Secretary,

REMEMBER 1893-6.

How Prosperity Changed to Panic When Democrats Elected a President.

In January, 1892, this country was prosperous, and all conditions indicated continuance of prosperity.

In November of that year a Democratic president was elected.

In 1893 the Democratic congress, convened in extraordinary session, began its anti-protection activities. After a time it enacted the Wilson low tariff law.

In the early summer of that year came the panic. In the period from May 1 to July 23, 301 banks, with a total capital of $38,000,000, suspended. The total number of banks suspended in that year was 585.

In 1892 the total amount of liabilities on account of business failure was $114,000,000. In 1893 the total was $346,000,000.

In the year 1893 railroad properties whose aggregate value was $1,200,000,000 were in the hands of receivers. Between May 4 and Oct. 3 $378,000,000 was withdrawn from national banks.

In this state alone withdrawals of deposits from savings banks were $34,000,000 in excess of deposits made.

In the period from Jan. 1, 1892, to Jan. 1, 1896, there was a shrinkage of $1,400,000,000 in the total value of farm products and live stock in the United States.

In that period prices were lower, but hundreds of thousands were wageless and other multitudes worked at low wages and on short time. They had little money or none with which to buy even the most ordinary necessities of life in adequate quantity.

Now, after twenty years, the Democratic party is again asking the electorate of the United States to put it in control of national affairs in order that the performances of its last period of control and their disastrous consequences may be repeated.

The Republican party, under whose administration during sixteen years the country has become newly prosperous and more prosperous than ever it was before, pledges itself to maintenance of the policies which restored and promoted prosperity.

There is a paramount issue. What intelligent American can hesitate to make his choice?—Albany Journal.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Current Events

To think over and, as I promised, to consider the news of the day, not only in this country but in the bigger country we call the world, one must get clear of small-headedness or self-conceit, and give other people credit for being honest in what we consider rank stupidity.

Today we are in a sense the laughing-stock of Europe. After saying that we were the greatest country under heaven and acting as if we despised kings and emperors, our great Progressive leader turns to the gold-helmeted, versatile, erratic German kaiser as his model. In the same paper in which I read the praise Mr. Roosevelt gives to the scientific tariff schedules of Germany and the grand results therefrom, there was also an account of public meetings attended by thousands of the German people protesting against these scientific tariffs, especially that on food. One speaker at these meetings said that they were tired of eating old, worn-out horses and wanted the duties taken off beef and wheat!

It is no use telling a person whose eyes are bandaged, to look at fine scenery. There are none so blind as those who will not see. In a commercial paper published in Boston (by the way, a pure, unadulterated, stand-pat paper) in last week's editorial we are told that if the Underwood tariffs passed, wages would be at least fifty per cent lower and nothing any cheaper, as the middlemen and the importers would keep up prices. This journal also tells us that if 100 per cent higher duties were put on, nothing would be any dearer, as competition would keep down prices.

I saw a man the other day who had just come from Europe. I was telling him that the stand-pat people did not believe me when I stated that you could buy the twenty dollar suits of clothes for twelve dollars in Britain. This friend I was speaking with is neither a Democrat nor a Progressive; he is a Taft man, and he said that men's clothes cost just about one-half the price we pay here.

I saw a woman last week who had been in this country for ten years. This honest Scotch woman said that a dollar here does not go any farther in buying goods than a half crown does in Scotland (half a crown is equal to sixty cents).

In France the high tariff on wheat was taken off the other day for a period of six months, so as to cheapen the bread of the people. This was done after a series of rather dynamic kind of meetings of the working people.

In England today, what they call the tariff reform party wants a duty put on wheat and beef and all foodstuffs coming from this country, so as to make bread and beef cheaper. "So there ye are," as Darby says.

Mr. Redmond gets a great reception in this country. The anti-home rule party in Ulster, thirty thousand of them, sign a solemn league and covenant saying that they will resist any home rule government set up in Dublin. An outdoor meeting of a hundred thousand people is held in Liverpool, addressed by two educated men from Cambridge and Oxford, Sir R. Carson and a Mr. Smith. Sir R. Carson said that with sword in hand he is ready to lead the Ulster men in battle array against the home rule party and the whole British army! Mr. Smith tells the Liverpool people that three of his friends in Liverpool will give him the use of their ships to take over ten thousand men to Ireland to assist their Ulster brethren if need be.

They put Mr. Parnell and others in jail for saying less against the government than these Tories who want a tax on United States food, and Canadian and other colonies to send their produce into the country free of duty.

I am almost ashamed of my countrymen, and if Oxford and Cambridge can only produce narrow-minded men like Carson and Smith, God help the universities.

The Scottish poet said that the learning got at schools was wasted if they went in stirks (i.e. young bullocks) and came out asses. All the book-learning of schools never put a particle of brains into a man. Like a poet, a man is born, not made by tailors' clothes or universities. Schools only teach a man how to employ the brains he has.

I can sympathize with our Scotch covenanted signing the solemn league and covenant with their blood; they cut their arms and drew blood and dipped the quill pen in the blood and signed their solemn league and covenant. Why? Because they were fanatics? Perhaps they were, but they insisted on being free men—free to worship God as their conscience dictated. The political power and force of the English government was being used to stop their Sunday worship, and in dens and mountain sides they met, with only a little table, a linen cloth spread over it, the bread and the wine of the Holy Communion laid on the table, and scouts watching for the Episcopal government dragoons who often, sword in hand, rode in and dispersed the unholy crew.

None of these things have taken place in Ulster. What are they afraid of? We must give them credit for being honest, but no credit for a thing called common sense.

IAN McDOUGALL.

September Crop Report

The Crop Report for September, published by the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, has just come from the press. Weather conditions for the country and state are summarized, and the condition of crops for the country as a whole are touched upon, but the larger part of the space is devoted to a discussion of crops in Massachusetts. This issue also contains an article upon "Pruning the Apple Tree," by C. D. Jarvis, Ph.D., of the Connecticut Agricultural College, giving directions as to the proper methods to employ, and by illustrations, showing the most desirable type of tree for commercial apple growing. A copy of this Crop Report may be had by applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, 136 State House, Boston, Mass. These reports are issued monthly from May to October of each year and all applicants have their names placed on the permanent mailing list, if they so desire.

What Alaskan Dogs Eat

Dogs in Alaska, when on the trail, are fed once a day, after a day's work is done. They are never fed in the morning, for if they were they would be lazy all day, or, what is more probable, would vomit up their breakfast soon after they got on the trail. Dogs, to work well, must be well fed, and it is false economy to underfeed a dog. They are fed on a variety of foods, including rice, tallow, corn-meal and fish. If rice or corn-meal forms a part of their food it must be cooked. Some men prefer to feed their dogs on bacon or fish, thus doing away with cooking. Cooked food is cheaper and more fattening than raw feed, but the question as to whether dogs can work better on cooked or uncooked food is one that will never be settled so long as there are "mushers" to argue the question.—Wide World Magazine.

Queer Signposts

In the neighborhood of Warmbrun, in the Silesian Mountains, there are to be found some very curious signposts. One seen by a writer in the Wide World Magazine represents a farm laborer sharpening his scythe, on which is inscribed, in the old Silesian dialect, "To Giers Village, One Hour." The signpost is well carved and painted in natural colors, so that it appears very life-like. Another signpost in the same district represented a school-boy carrying a slate bearing the name of the nearest village, toward which the boy is pointing.

MAJESTIC

"Little Boy Blue," a musical comedy in two acts, is in Boston for the first time at the Majestic theatre. An enthusiastic audience witnessed its first performance on Monday night and enjoyed to the full the clever chorus and pleasing impersonation. The production is elaborately staged, and there is constant action throughout the piece.

TREMONT

"A Polish Wedding," a musical farce adapted from the German, is playing at the Tremont. The piece has a plot from which humorous situations spring naturally, and while the humor is not subtle, it is always pure fun. The attraction next week will be Blanche Ring in "The Wall Street Girl."

CASTLE SQUARE

"The Aviator," a comedy by James Montgomery, is being very successfully played at Castle Square. The train of comical situations arising from the predicament in which the young author finds himself when forced to make an ascension in an aeroplane about which he knows nothing, keeps the audience in good spirits from beginning to end of the play.

LAWRENCE

At 6.30 o'clock Sunday evening the children of the Sunday school of the Riverside Congregational church gave a harvest concert to a large audience.

Sunday, Daniel Saunders, Jr., ex-mayor of this city, and lawyer, quietly and without ostentation observed his 60th birthday at the family home, 73 Prospect street.

A large crowd was present Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's school grounds to witness the competition drill of companies A, B, C, D, and F, of St. Mary's cadets.

An enthusiastic Progressive rally was held at city hall Tuesday evening. The principal speaker was Charles Sumner Bird of Walpole, candidate for governor.

A brisk blaze in a storehouse of the Archibald Wheel Company off West street, called the fire department in response to an alarm from Box 243 on Saturday night.

The election of County officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., took place at Salem Sunday afternoon and Mrs. Katharine A. O'Keefe O'Mahoney of this city was again elected president.

William F. Arthur, son of the late David Arthur, who held the position of designer in the Everett mills for many years, has been elected agent and general manager of a large cotton plant in South Carolina.

Approximately 25,000 persons will participate in the monster civic parade of protest on Columbus Day, against the desecration of the American flag by the Industrial Workers of the World, in this city.

Ladies' night will be observed next Thursday night in Oddfellows' Temple by Lowell lodge, Ancient Order of United Workmen. They will have as guests members of Pacific lodge of Lawrence, and ladies.

Burnett's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow." The play is one with a distinct purpose, and entails much argument over ethical questions, but is treated in such a way that there is no lack of interest.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

More than one world's championship was decided in Boston during the past week, for Henry W. Savage won the undisputed lead in the field of light operatic production by his sensational success, "Little Boy Blue," at the Majestic Theatre last Monday night. The limited run of the operetta at the Majestic Theatre promises to equal any of the engagements of Mr. Savage's sensational success, "The Merry Widow," in Boston.

The story is one of the most romantic ever written for a musical play. It surrounds the famous portrait of "Boy Blue" done by the renowned painter, Gainsborough. The scenes take one from Bal Tabarin in Paris to the old castle of the Cobberdeens in Scotland. The locales afford Mr. Savage plenty of opportunity for the exercise of the facilities of the treasure trove in his New York studio, and as a consequence the scenery and general production of "Little Boy Blue" is one of the most elaborate he has ever made.

Colonial Theatre

The main interest in "The Common Law" centres upon Louis Neville, an artist, who, being reared in wealth and luxury, disappoints his relatives and friends by falling in love with his model, Valerie West, a most heinous crime in the eyes of his dotting parents, whose every effort to separate the lovers proves futile, and in the end two hearts are made supremely happy. "The Common Law" will be at the Colonial on Saturday, matinee and night.

Sunday afternoon two young foreigners pulled down the Stars and Stripes which was floating in the breeze between 86 and 88 Knox street. The police were notified and got a good description of the fellows whom they claim to know.

In several of the local churches Sunday the pastors took occasion to comment in their sermons on the conditions that have existed in this city for several months and to condemn the element which brought them about. Reverence for the flag and the upholding of law and order they said must be the watchword.

The city council met Monday morning in regular session and a large amount of routine business was transacted. An order was passed for the re-establishing of the grade on Merrimack street and the Bay State Railway company was granted permission to relocate its tracks in front of the car barn. It was voted to construct sidewalks around the Packard, South Union street and Breen schools.

Honoring the Flag in Lawrence

During the past week the wave of patriotism which started in Lawrence as a result of the I. W. W. desecration of the Stars and Stripes, has been increasing rapidly day by day, until it has assumed proportions seldom equalled in times of peace. A store front undecorated with the national colors, a vehicle without a flag flying from some part of it, or a man, woman, or child who does not wear an emblem of some kind, is rare. The need of patriotism has daily been the theme of sermons and addresses among all classes and nationalities, and flag-raising has been numerous.

The enthusiasm which is so widespread is expected to reach high water mark tomorrow when the mammoth Columbus Day parade will take place. It is estimated that about 25,000 people will take part, and over seventy lodges and organizations will be represented in the line of march.

The enrollment last year at this time was about 150.

Last Days of "The Durbar"

So great has been the popular demand for more of "The Durbar in Kinemacolor," which has packed Tremont Temple, Boston, all summer, that the management has decided to run this wonderful series of natural color motion pictures of the crowning of King George and Queen Mary as Emperor and Empress of India until Saturday night, October 19, when they will be followed by a series of travel presentations in the same wonderful process.

Lawrence Grant, the well-known traveler and brilliant speaker, will give the first of his productions, "Yellowstone National Park," on Monday evening, October 21. His view of things always is of decided interest to the audience; being an Englishman he is disposed to appreciate this Western Wonderland with the full enthusiasm of a stranger. The general title of Mr. Grant's series will be "America Through My Monocle."

Though the presentation at Tremont Temple is the most popular of the Boston season there are people who ask, "What is Kinemacolor?" It is a reflection of nature—the dream of ages come true. At last the seemingly impossible has been accomplished, and motion pictures in true, accurate and beautiful natural colors have become a reality. Since the early days of photography, scientists have been striving for pictures in natural colors—and Kinemacolor is doubly triumphant; for in addition to color it perpetuates life and action, so that future generations may enjoy the life of today, or that the whole wide world may be brought to us and spread before our eyes to comfortably gaze upon.

A Tower of Skulls

In 1809 the Turks defeated the Servians at Nish, and in memory of the victory built a tower of stone and Servian skulls. At one time visitors and tourists used to carry away skulls as souvenirs, and not so many years ago the heads were still to be seen embedded in the walls. When Nish became Servian, however, as many skulls as could be extricated were given Christian burial. A few still remain, too firmly held by the plaster, and of these, two, in a glass case, are shown at the memorial church close by.—Wide World Magazine.

Obituary

MRS. CHARLES WESTON

Mrs. Celia S. Weston, wife of Charles Weston, died Sunday afternoon after a long illness, at her home on Andover street, at the age of 56 years, 9 months, and 10 days.

The deceased was born in Framelode, Gloucestershire, England, and came to this country about twelve years ago and settled in Lawrence where she lived about three years.
She then came to Ballardvale where she had lived the past nine years.

Mrs. Weston had many fine traits of character and her many friends will sincerely mourn her loss.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock from her late home and was conducted by Rev. A.
H. Fuller. The floral tributes were very beautiful and consisted besides many offerings from relatives and neighbors, of a beautiful spray from the home department of the Congregational Sunday School, of which the deceased was a member. Interment was in the family lot at Spring Grove cemetery.

Abbot Academy and Mount Holyoke College

If the offer made by the trustees of Abbot Academy in 1834 to Miss Mary Lyon to locate here her proposed school for the higher education of girls had been accepted, Andover might have been directly concerned this week in the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Mount Holyoke.

During these years, however, there have been many links between the two institutions. Seventy pupils and teachers of Abbot Academy have been connected with Mount Holyoke either as students or teachers.

Miss Phebe McKeen was a beloved teacher there before coming to Abbot, as is evidenced by an expression of admiration received from one of her pupils.

At the Alumnae Commemoration Exercises on Tuesday, high tribute was paid to an early principal, Miss Mary M. Chapin (Mrs. C. B. Pease), a student at Abbot in 1834. Many words of appreciation and honor were spoken of Mrs. Elizabeth Storrs Mead, first president of the College, who taught at Abbot from 1883 until her appointment as president in 1890.

Miss Laura Watson, Mount Holyoke 1871, former principal of Abbot Academy, was a guest at the celebration. The name of Mrs. Mary Gage Peterson (Abbot Academy 1859-61) was on the toast card of the alumnae luncheon. Miss Bertha M. Terrill, Mount Holyoke 1895, teacher of Greek at Abbot 1896-1900, and now dean of women at the University of Vermont, was a delegate representing that institution in the formal intercollegiate exercises of Wednesday.

The beautiful and remarkable features of the occasion. Much of the credit for the success of this great undertaking is given to Miss Susan Almira Bacon, Abbot Academy 1884-85, sister of Mrs. Philip Ripley, who was one of the directors. Among the many picturesquely attired heralds was a graduate of the last college preparatory class, Miss Mildred Chutter.

Five Mount Holyoke alumnae now connected with the academy attended the celebration.

Abbot Academy is glad to express at this time her realization of these mutual obligations and to offer her congratulations and good wishes to Mount Holyoke College.

INTRODUCING A NEW TREATMENT

Conservative Claims, Backed by Facts and Reason, More Effective Than Boastful Arguments.

Many meritorious products nowadays fail to become popular because of the extravagant claims of merit.
The time is past for over statements in advertisements—especially in America. People are constantly becoming more cautious and discriminating—they weigh and dissect most propositions before accepting.

A notable instance of successful conservative advertising has recently been demonstrated in this town.

The English Pharmacal Laboratories, Inc., some time ago asked the Andover druggists to aid them in introducing a non-secret, scientific method of treating hemorrhoids—the English Hemorrhoid Treatment.

When these druggists were shown the prescriptions on each package and were told of the dignified advertising campaign proposed, most all agreed to help in the distribution.

They saw at once that they could recommend and in fact guarantee this unique method of treatment.

A pamphlet, giving the causes and effect of hemorrhoids, can be obtained at most any drug store in Andover or vicinity. It is an excellent treatise on the subject and should be read by all who are afflicted.

The campaign in this section is said to be the most encouraging. Even physicians are recommending the "E-H-T" remedies as they recognize from the prescription printed on each package that they possess unusual merit. Ask your Druggist. Ask your physician.
